Dear Biographee,

Dictionary of International Biography, Volume XIV

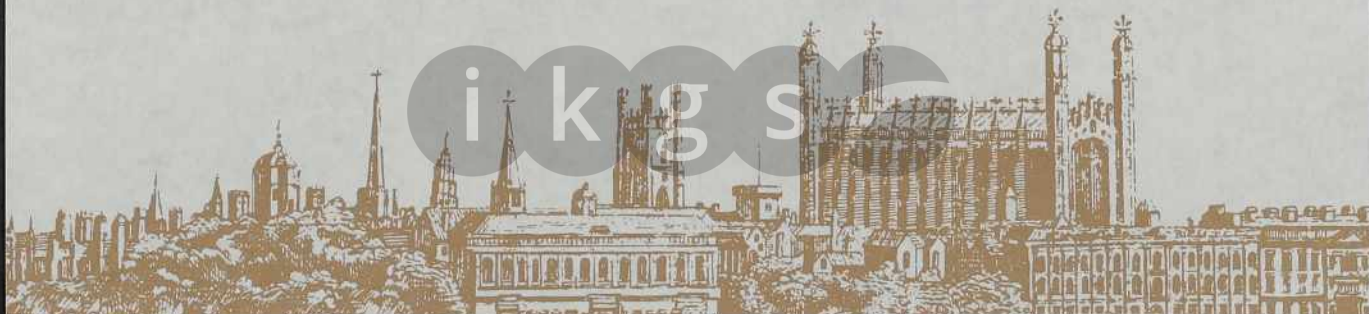

You have been commended to me as one suitably qualified for biographical inclusion in the Fourteenth Edition of this long-established work and I will be personally grateful if you will be good enough to complete the enclosed biographical questionnaire and return it to me not later than the time specified on the front page. No obligation is incurred by so doing.

During the last few years the international status of the Dictionary of International Biography has grown steadily and many of the 129,000 men and women who have already been listed in one of more editions have become friends, at least by correspondence and even by personal meeting, as a direct result of their inclusion within its pages. The first International Conference of biographees was held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, in July 1975, and the second at the Washington Hilton Hotel, Washington DC, in July 1976. At each of these events every Continent of the world was represented.

In 1977 we are doing even better, with the third International Conference in Florence, Italy, in March; and the Silver Jubilee Conference in London, England, in July to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession of Queen Elizabeth II to the throne of Britain. Yet another means of bringing together our biographees of similar interests is the quarterly publication of the IBC Magazine.

D.I.B. XIV will again include some fifteen thousand biographies of people like yourself - men and women of achievement - from many nations: indeed, most countries will again be represented. It is published by the famed International Biographical Centre, of Cambridge, England.

I am proud and delighted to be able to announce that the price of D.I.B. XIV is being held at the same as D.I.B. XIII, in spite of vastly-increased costs of production. But you are under no obligation to purchase a copy nor is there any charge of any kind for the publication of your biography. The completion of the questionnaire carries no further involvement whatever unless, of course, you actually wish to order.

I very much look forward to receiving your completed questionnaire.

With thanks and friendly greetings.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read 'Ernest Kay', is written over a horizontal line.

Ernest Kay
Hon. General Editor.

Dear Biographee:

Dictionary of International Biography, Volume XVI

I am happy to inform you that you have been recommended to me as a person suitably qualified for biographical inclusion in the Sixteenth Edition of this long-established work and I would be grateful if you would kindly complete the enclosed biographical questionnaire and return it to me within twenty-one days. You will incur no obligation by so doing.

The Dictionary of International Biography is produced by the International Biographical Centre (IBC) of Cambridge, England, the publishers of a wide range of Who's Whos some of which date back forty-four years. DIB is now acknowledged as a leading work of biographical reference housed in National and State Libraries throughout the world. More than 150,000 men and women in virtually every nation have been featured in one or more Editions.

The main purpose of the Dictionary of International Biography is to record for all time the contemporary achievements of those carefully-selected persons like yourself who are helping to shape the development of modern society at international, national, state or local level. Present and future generations will be able to look back upon the achievements of those who have been honoured by inclusion.

I would like to draw your attention to the note at the top of the reverse side of the questionnaire. This refers to a unique feature - the copyrighted coding at the end of each entry which annotates all other biographical reference books in which you are listed.

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that there is no charge for inclusion, nor is there any obligation to purchase. In fact, completion of the questionnaire carries no further involvement whatsoever unless you actually wish to order. In this case you are entitled to a special discount as detailed on the Reservation Form.

I much look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Ernest Kay,
Hon. General Editor.

Dear Biographee:

Dictionary of International Biography, Volume XVII

I hope you will accept this personal invitation for biographical inclusion in the Seventeenth Edition of this long-established work which is acknowledged as one of the world's leading international biographical reference books, housed in National, State, University and Public Libraries of most countries. It will be helpful if you will kindly complete the enclosed biographical questionnaire and return it to me within twenty-one days of receipt. You incur no obligation whatever by so doing.

I have been honoured by appointment as Hon. General Editor for the fourteenth successive year and I am determined that this Seventeenth Edition (possibly my last) will be the best of the entire series. To help me achieve this aim I now seek your co-operation and I thank you in advance for it.

The Dictionary of International Biography is published by the International Biographical Centre (IBC) of Cambridge, England, a biographical research organization of standing throughout the world. The IBC publishes a wide range of Who's Whos of all kinds and some of the titles date back for nearly half a century.

The main purpose of the Dictionary of International Biography is to record for all time the contemporary achievements of those carefully-selected persons like yourself who are helping to shape the development of modern society at international, national, state or local level. Present and future generations will be able to look back upon the achievements of those who have been honoured by inclusion.
